WRITES LINES TO A BORE.

At Wilkesbarre, Pa., submitting as justification some verses she had sent to him, the attorney for Benjamin Brown defended him against the charge made by Catharine Edmiston that he threatened to kill her.
Additional interest was lent to the case by the fact that Brown is a dwarf and Miss Edmiston fully six feet tall. The verses were:
Though in intellect you're feeble than an average canary,
Of your idiotic gabble you're not the least bit chary;
You bore us with your stupid thoughts and imbecile opinions,
Till we long to see you banished to Lucifer's dominions.
We use this means to warn you, that unless we get a rest We'll resort to savage measures for suppressing you, you pest.
The court laughed much, and held Brown under $500 bail to keep the peace.

Wilke Refrigerators....

MERIT THE SERIOUS ATTENTION OF EVERY CAREFUL HOUSEWIFE.

The safe, economical and healthful preservation of food is quite as important as the food itself. Fresh, sweet and clean foods should not be submitted to the care of soggy, decaying wood and corroding metal, nor surrounded with dank, dead air; yet that persistent odor in the ordinary refrigerator is proof positive of corruption.

WILKE REFRIGERATORS are lined with either white glazed tile or half-inch plate glass; internal fixtures are all removable. Materials are absolutely non-corrosive, construction is air-tight, and there is a constant circulation of cold, dry air in every cubic inch of the provision chambers.

ODOR OF ONIONS KILLS HIM.

The traditional ex-rable smell of onions has at last resulted in a death.
A fireman named Pompily was at Paris last month about to leave a vessel which lay in port, but seeing one of the hatches open leaned over to see if any one was working below. He was immediately overpowered by the fumes from the onions which filled the hold and fell headlong into the opening.
Three men rushed to Pompily's assistance and were also partially overcome. When the crew succeeded in getting the men on deck Pompily was dead and his three rescuers required careful medical attention before they recovered.
